this collection of essays examines the history of cotton textiles at a global level over the period 1200 1850 it provides new answers to two questions what is it about cotton that made it the paradigmatic first global commodity and second why did cotton industries in different parts of the world follow different paths of development today s world textile and garment trade is valued at a staggering 425 billion we are told that under the pressure of increasing globalisation it is india and china that are the new world manufacturing powerhouses however this is not a new phenomenon until the industrial revolution asia manufactured great quantities of colourful printed cottons that were sold to places as far afield as japan west africa and europe cotton explores this earlier globalised economy and its transformation after 1750 as cotton led the way in the industrialisation of europe by the early nineteenth century india china and the ottoman empire switched from world producers to buyers of european cotton textiles a position that they retained for over two hundred years this is a fascinating and insightful story which ranges from asian and european technologies and african slavery to cotton plantations in the americas and consumer desires across the globe this historic book may have numerous typos and missing text purchasers can usually download a free scanned copy of the original book without typos from the publisher not indexed not illustrated 1908 edition excerpt women for instance are continually bringing in their old costumes elaborately wrought with needlework which they sell for a small price and purchase cheap manchester calicoes the largest cotton manufacturing company is that of eetzina brothers of piraeus who have three mills one making yarn only one making american cloth sheetings only and one using skem dyeing making colored goods of various kinds the three mills of this company contain 30 000 spindles and 400 looms five years ago the greek textile industry was very prosperous and cotton goods were exported to crete turkey and other near by countries at that time it took 8 35 to 8 50 paper drachmas to equal an american dollar but now it takes only 5 45 as the greek exports were paid for abroad in gold and converted at home into paper drachmas to pay for cotton and wages this rising value of the drachma has been to the disadvantage of manufacturers and has closed to them all outside markets only the tariff enables them to retain their hold on the home market in coarser cloths the industry has experienced a good many obstacles and fortunes have been lost in it but it is to day fairly prosperous there are a few hand looms scattered throughout greece which make mostly sailcloth and coarse wearing apparel growth and consumption of cotton about one half of the cotton used in the home mills i raised in greece and the other half is imported the total being some 20 000 bales only the grecian cotton is better than that from asia minor is clean and five eighths to seven eighths inch staple it is harsher than american and the staple runs much more uneven there are no figures available as to the outturn but the largest cotton dealer at piraeus
